Perhaps the fundamental is the correct realm for a theory of consciousness. In Consciousness and its Place in Nature, substance dualism and epiphenomenalism are explored in addition to the three materialist philosophies so far discussed, and they are found wanting. Substance dualism, while a commonsense religious viewpoint for billions of people, faces ontological and logical problems such as the coupling problem, interaction problem, Ockham's Razor (why should there be two types of ...

Consciousness at its simplest is "sentience or awareness of internal or external existence". Despite centuries of analyses, definitions, explanations and debates by philosophers and scientists, consciousness remains puzzling and controversial, being "at once the most familiar and most mysterious aspect of our lives". Perhaps the only widely agreed notion about the topic is the intuition that ...
